Rationale of the Africa-Europe Local and Regional Governments' Forum

In Africa, as well as in Europe, the subnational governments are taking action to address global challenges, driving territorial sustainable development. Local and regional governments are actors of governance: bringing stakeholders together, they act on the mandate bestowed on them by their constituencies and they engage with other tiers of government to benefit all in their communities.

The African Union's Agenda 2063 commits to renew leadership at both the national and the local levels in order to contribute to the structural transformation of Africa so that the continent is able to take advantage of the opportunities of its huge endowment in natural and human resources and be able to address the urgent challenges it faces in terms of sustainable human development. On its part, the European Union's reviewed 'European Consensus on Development' and 'next steps for a sustainable future' explicitly recognize the role of local governments and of decentralisation processes in achieving a sustainable future and give a strong basis for the strategic partnerships between the European Union and the regional and global associations of local and regional governments.

The 5th AU-EU Summit, taking place in Abidjan, Côte d'Ivoire (29-30 November 2017) will redefine AU-EU Partnership's strategic orientations for the coming years. On the eve of this event, African and European leaders of local and regional governments will gather in the first ever AU-EU Local Government Forum in Abidjan on 27 November 2017 to share their messages and bring the local government perspective on the agenda of AU- EU-Africa.

The Forum will address key issues of economic development, investing in youth, migration, human mobility, climate change and access to energy. The meeting will showcase the contributions of subnational governments to sustainable development and will contribute to the 5th AU-EU- Summit with concrete proposals how to make local & regional governments part of the joint AU-EU- strategies.

The forum will bring together the political leadership of UCLG-Africa, CEMR and PLATFORMA and is open to other local government associations. This group of high-level representative organisations will adopt the Declaration of the Africa-Europe Forum of Local and Regional Governments that is the result of a series of consultations and exchanges that started with a pre-Forum on 10 July 2017 in the context of the 5th Assizes of decentralised cooperation.

Panel 2

Integration and mainstreaming local and subnational governments in the post Cotonou Agreement and the upcoming new Joint Africa-Europe Strategy

Local and Regional governments are pragmatic actors for development. They take initiatives to respond to challenges on their territories. These contribute already to the ambitions of the AU-EU partnership. Local and Regional government initiatives however merit being upscaled through dedicated political and economic support.

The panel builds on initiatives from Africa and Europe that showcase the potential of subnational governments contribution to the AU-EU partnership as well as other partnership frameworks such as the future of EU-ACP relations, the Green Climate Fund and the SDGs – all of which call for a more direct access for subnational governments to dialogues, partnerships and access to finances.
